

Infynyte i4

One of Canada's great luxuries is the ability to buy a little piece of paradise on a quiet back lake, where you can build a cottage and enjoy boating at its finest. Ironically, some of the most appealing locations are on smaller lakes subject to horsepower restrictions, which makes finding an appropriate craft a tough job indeed. Infynyte Marine offers its answer to this dilemma with a growing line of electric-powered boats, including the graceful i4.

Stretching 14 feet in length and with a 6-foot, eight-inch beam, the i4 is the larger of two models Infynyte builds at its home base in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley. With comfortable lounge seating for five adults, the i4 rides on a unique catamaran hull platform designed from the keel up with electric power in mind. The result is vastly improved efficiency compared to electric-powered boats that were originally designed for a gas outboard or other form of power. Its integral electric motors push the i4 along at a very respectable 16 kilometres per hour, with a running time of about five hours on continuous high speed operation. Used more realistically, with stops here and there to fish, swim, lunch or just enjoy the day, the i4 will run for about 10 hours between battery charges.

In operation the boat is whisper quiet, with the sound of its twin cat hulls sliding through the water all that you hear. There's no need to shout above the engine on this boat.

The i4's FRP-laminated hull and deck, with high-gloss, UV-protected gelcoat, give the i4 a sophisticated and contemporary look. Standard features include positive foam flotation, integrated non-skid floor, navigation lights, an integrated, backlit dash pane, an onboard battery charger, no less than eight beverage holders, deep storage bins with hinged lids for gear, a three-step telescoping boarding ladder on the swim platform, and flush-mount, pull-up cleats. But perhaps the most unique feature of all is its 360-degree joystick maneuvering system. Just push the stick where you want the boat to go, and it obediently follows. It's mounted in a central console between the forward-facing rear seats, and easily operable from either position.

1) With its near-silent operation and comfortable face-to-face lounge seating for four adults, the Infynyte i4 provides a great environment for an afternoon cruise with friends or family.

2) A telescoping three-step ladder on the transom platform facilitates re-boarding after a swim.

A full range of optional equipment, including a stereo with iPod dock, single-axle Shoreland'r trailer, mooring cover and removable Bimini top, allow owners to truly make the boat their own. ☑
